5. STUDENT COMMUNICATION PLANS

Communication plans have been established based on different types of warning signs.

- Mental health: If a student misses a personal counseling appointment, the counselor on the case will make two attempts to reschedule the session (once via phone and once via email). The counselor on the case will document the outcome of the contact attempts in the student's confidential file as needed.
- Suicide prevention: If it is reported to a counselor that a student is a danger to themselves, the counselor will follow the Threat to Self policy listed in the Policy and Procedure Portal on the website.
- Early Interventions: Counselors also respond to early intervention reports given by the Supportive Services Department. Counselors attempt to contact the student 3 times via phone/email. Counselors document contact and plan and submit back to Supportive Services.

6. POST INTERVENTION PLANS

This post intervention plan is to provide a framework for those impacted by a campus suicide. The goal of the plan would be to offer the college community support through grief and adjustments and to bring awareness of suicide prevention to decrease risk of further campus suicides.

1. Forming a Committee:

The committee should have members from the following areas: student affairs, counseling, marketing, Emergency Response Team, and security. The mental health team lead will coordinate and lead the committee. Additional committee members can be added as needed. It is also suggested to seek support from community mental health providers, law enforcement, and spiritual resources as needed to partake in committee.

- Counseling Representative, Committee Chair
- Emergency Response Team Representative
- Human Resources Representative
- Health Sciences Representative
- Student Affairs Representative
- Marketing Representative
- Student Life Representative
- Police Academy Faculty, security perspective

2. Communication:

In the event of a campus suicide, communication should be made within 72 hours to the campus community. The marketing department will work with the post intervention committee to communicate the loss. The post intervention committee should look at appropriate ways to communicate the loss through email and social media outlets. The response should not sensationalize the event. The communication should also include signs of suicide and help hotlines, condolences to friends and family, and plans to support those impacted. It is also imperative the committee discuss communications with the family of the deceased. A suggested resource to use for appropriate messaging/communication for the post intervention committee can be found at <http://suicidepreventionmessaging.org/>. The college's attorney should also be consulted about any legal concerns about campus communication of a suicide.

Whenever possible the order of communications should be:

- Family of the deceased
- Friends of the deceased
- Faculty, staff, and administration (email)
- Student body (email)
- Public statement on social media

3. Clinical Services:

A range of clinical services will be offered to those impacted by a campus suicide. All services should be voluntary. All services will be published and communicated to the campus community.

- Crisis: during the campus operating hours the counselors should move and flex schedules to allow for immediate crisis counseling related to campus suicide if needed. If a crisis would occur after hours, students will be made aware of community crisis numbers they can utilize.
- Individual counseling: it will be communicated that individual counseling is available at the CCBC counseling center and through our EAP partner, Productivity Partners | 1-800-327-5465 | info@productivity.partners.net | www.productivity.partners.net. | Outpatient service free to CCBC Students.
- Group counseling & group discussions: the counselors will offer support groups to students that would like to participate. Counselors should screen students to make sure they are appropriate for groups. Counselors may also refer students to grief groups in the community that may be helpful. Counselors should use appropriate resources to develop appropriate group curriculum.
- Psychoeducation: the counselors will work with marketing and the post intervention committee to publish materials that include warning signs of suicide, how to get help, self-care etc.
- Consultation: counselors may be contacted by faculty and staff about how to support students. Counselors should be available to offer tips and support to faculty and staff so they can best support their students during the post intervention phase if needed.
- Support to first responders: support for first responders who are employees - LytleEAP 800-327-7272, other first responders may (see appendix).
- Support to family of deceased: counselors will help family and friends that are not CCBC students get support and services off campus (see appendix).

4. Memorials/Related Events:

The post intervention committee shall meet to determine if it is appropriate to hold memorial services. If the college does not hold memorials for other student deaths, it may not be a good idea to only hold them for suicide related deaths. A few other things the committee should take into consideration:

- Deceased family's opinion of a memorial
- Allowing appropriate amount of time to pass
- Consider a fundraiser to continue to raise awareness
- If there is a service, support should be present for the students (counselors)
- Community spiritual support may be consulted
- If wanting to hold anniversary memorials, consider doing for all student deaths

5. Debriefing:

The post intervention committee should meet twice to debrief the handling of the campus suicide. The first meeting should occur 1-2 weeks after the suicide and the last meeting should occur 1 month after the suicide. The post intervention committee should also evaluate how campus culture is getting back to routines and should continue to implement strategies to promote routine and stabilization as needed.
